Q: How can I re-run an expression in B#? I've written an expression that works in some cases, and not in others. For example, `i8 = 9 ushort = 0 byte = (ushort) i8` Works as expected. I'd like to avoid writing a ton of these and instead re-write the expression to avoid the `i8 = 9` unless it really is 0. How can I do this? A: Solution: You can use switch cases: `switch(i8) { case 0: result = ushort; break; case 9: result = byte; break; }` Reference: Although usually it's much better to use ifs. Example of switch case: Sign up to FREE email alerts from MyLondon - London Underground News Subscribe Thank you for subscribing See our privacy notice Invalid Email
